Reviews

This publication is indeed gripping and intriguing. It is actually written in basic terms and not difficult to understand. I am just pleased to explain how here is the greatest publication we have read through during my own lifestyle and could be the best pdf for at any time.

'Who am I kidding? No matter how glorious it is being single - most of the time - I do believe that human beings are genetically programmed to want to pair up. Our quest for bonding makes us do stupid, inappropriate things, alter our standards, backslide on our beliefs.' It takes courage to tell such truths." - LA Times "Her perspective and insights into the romantic lives of unattached older women are fresh." -- Baltimore Sun "For those wondering what it's like to try to find a life partner as the years grind on, Ganahl provides a lively portrait; fellow wanderers on the road to love should find some solace in knowing that adventure need not wait for the perfect travel companion." -- Ladies' Home Journal "Books We Love" "Ganahl's writing is sassy, fiery (the prose equivalent of her red hair and love of rock and roll), and many readers will nod in amused sympathy as she recounts her disastrous forays into the world of online dating or laments the difficulty of looking sexy in a sensible heel. But the book...
