Excerpt: . . . have received a total of about 325 million, which they have used primarily to help build runways, purchase navigational aids, and maintain 7 pavements and airfield lighting. Most of the state aviation officials and general aviation airport managers we surveyed said the grants were useful in meeting their needs, and some suggested that the 150, 000 grant limit be increased so that general aviation airports could undertake larger projects. However, a number of state officials cautioned that an increase in the general aviation entitlement grant could cause a decrease in the state apportionment fund, which states use to address their aviation priorities. Another option would be to increase or eliminate the cap on passenger facility charges. This option would primarily benefit larger airports, because passenger facility charges are a function of the volume of passenger traffic. However, under AIP, airports that collect passenger facility charges must forfeit a certain percentage of their AIP formula funds. These funds are subsequently divided...
