This is the 2013 version of the annual report to the US Congress on Military and Security Developments involving the Peoples Republic of China. Section 1246, Annual Report on Military and Security Developments Involving the Peoples Republic of China, of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010, Public Law 111-84, which amends the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2000, Section 1202, Public Law 106-65, provides that the Secretary of Defense shall submit a report in both classified and unclassified form, on military and security developments involving the Peoples Republic of China. The report shall address the current and probable future course of military-technological development of the Peoples Liberation Army and the tenets and probable development of Chinese security strategy and military strategy, and of the military organizations and operational concepts supporting such development over the next 20 years. The report shall also address U. S. -China engagement and cooperation on security matters during the period covered by the report, including through U. S. -China military-to-military contacts, and the U. S. strategy for such engagement and cooperation in the future. THE PEOPLES REPUBLIC OF CHINA (PRC) continues to pursue a long-term, comprehensive military modernization program designed to improve the capacity of its armed forces to fight and win short- duration, high-intensity regional military conflict. Preparing for potential conflict in the Taiwan Strait appears to remain the principal focus and primary driver of Chinas military investment. However, as Chinas interests have grown and as it has gained greater influence in the international system, its military modernization has also become increasingly focused on investments in military capabilities to conduct a wider range of missions beyond its immediate...
